D O N, August 14.

[illegible] the King of Prussia has detter[illegible] the Russians, in case the house of [illegible] Austria [illegible] oppose the operations of the court of Petersburgh [illegible] war with the Turks.

Some very disagreeable news has lately been received from the East-Indies. Summers, the renegade general, who a few years ago murdered a great number of English prisoners in cool blood, and has remained unheard of a considerable time, has at length emerged from his obscurity, and is now at the head of 90,000 men, committing acts of hostility on one of the Nabobs in alliance with us near Madras.

There are letters in town which positively affirm, that after the Danish fleet had destroyed the batteries of the Algerines upon the mole, a flag of truce was flung out, and that matters were likely to come to an accommodation, by the mediation of the French consul. Two of the Danish ships were much damaged by the shells of the enemy.

August 16. The most authentic intelligence is received of a sea-fight betwixt the capital fleets of the Russians and Turks, which ended in a compleat victory on the side of the Russians. As the advice which brought the account, came away very soon after the action, the more minute particulars could not be collected and imparted; but the generals of the affair are as follows: The Russians were so lucky as to make good their way into the Archipelago much sooner than was expected, as the usual course of the winds could not be depended on to carry them sooner than September. They were not however far advanced into this sea, when, on the 15th of July, being nineteen ships commanded by Admiral Elphinstone, they fell in with the Turkish fleet, consisting of twenty-three ships, commanded by Zeffier Beg. They engaged each other with the appearance of great ardour on both side; and, after an obstinate engagement, the Turks were obliged to yield the victory; and those of their vessels, which remained in a condition to effect it, saved themselves by flight. It is supposed the Turkish admiral Zeffier, was very near being taken, as the vessel sunk in which he was presumed to be, and the commander was seen to get out of her, with great difficulty, into a boat. The loss of the Turks is three ships taken by the Russians, two sunk, and several others so disabled as to be in great danger of foundering; the rest were dispersed, most of them in a shattered condition. The Russians have received very inconsiderable damage. This action will gain great credit to Admiral Elphinstone, and put the character of the Russian marine on a respectable footing; the sending a fleet into the Archipelago by the Czarina having been considered by many, and even by some persons of intelligence here, as a chimerical and impracticable project.

The Russian fleet will not at present endeavour to force its passage to Constantinople, on account of the plague's being in that city and neighbourhood; but while it waits a more favourable season, it will find very important work in destroying the remainder of the Turkish marine in those seas, in taking the principal islands of the Archipelago, and in cutting off the supply of provisions from the city of Constantinople.

Twenty thousand muskets, with bayonets, and horse pistols, are now fabricating at Bermingham, for the use of two northern powers.

Yesterday after breaking up of the board of Admiralty, an express was sent off for Commodore Proby, commander in chief of his Majesty's squadron in the Mediterranean.

A great number of pieces of iron ordinance, of a very large caliber, are ordered to be shipped from Woolwich for Gibraltar and Minorca, and a parcel of old cannon is to be brought home from those garrisons.

The King of Prussia (whose genius the world is well acquainted with) has declared that he will, when opportunity serves, strike a stroke that shall confound all Europe, and in consequence place himself on the Imperial throne of Russia, a place from whence he will give laws to the whole world.

The navy of England was never upon so respectable a footing, we are authorised to assure the public, as at present, nor in so thorough a repair, for as fast as one ship comes out of the dock from refitting, another goes in.

August 18. A letter from Petersburg says, "It is reported here that the Empress has, with the concurrence and advice of her whole court, refused to listen to the many overtures for peace, made not only by the Grand Seignior, but the ambassadors of some foreign powers, being firmly resolved to drive the Turks entirely out of Europe, and even to secure to the empire the possession of some valuable islands in the Levant."

A letter from Hamburgh mentions that the politicians there affirm, that the rapid progress of the Russians will give very speedily a new turn to the political balance of power in Europe.

Letters from Smyrna mention, that part of the Russian fleet under Admiral Kennedy had laid siege to Rhodes, and were daily expected to carry that island; it being but thinly garrisoned.

Extract of a letter from Leghorn.

"Several private letters received here confirm the following account: 'That the whole kingdom of Egypt has withdrawn itself from the dominions of the Porte; that several provinces in Asia have set up the standard of rebellion; and that his Highness is so exasperated with the Jews in the Morea, that he has caused all those who resided at Constantinople to be put to the sword."

The Grand Seignior is now at Adrianople, where he keeps a constant guard of 30,000 men round the Seraglio, and admits none but the Council and foreign Ministers to see him, who are obliged to pass through a lane of Guards.

We are assured, that the following is one of the resolutions agreed upon at a late meeting at Stowe, that no one member of the minority shall accept any place whatever, which may be offered to him, without the advice and concurrence of the whole corps.

The late hopes of a coalition between the Inns and Outs are founded, we are told, upon the offers made by the party that command the T------y, to bring off some of the leaders. But if a coalition should take place, what æra would be more remarkable than that where two parties of such opposite principles should compose a Ministry?------And what will become of poor England, if both parties should conspire against her liberties.

It is said the Honourable James Grenville, Esq; was appointed one of the Joint Vice Treasurers of Ireland, but he refused the offer.

Private letters from Paris assure us that the Duke de Choiseul has some great designs now on the carpet, which will shortly be made public.

By a new regulation which has taken place within these six weeks, no Englishman travelling in France, can go from one part of that kingdom to the other without a double passport, signed by the French King, and his Minister, the Duke de Choiseul, the English ambassador, or Mr. Walpole, his secretary. No earnest for a carriage can be taken till this visa[illegible] is produced. This prohibition extends to all foreigners travelling in France. A few more such obstructions to the pleasure of a free people, which are indeed so many badges of slavery, will it is hoped, make our fine gentlemen and ladies less inclined to waste so much of their time and money in their polite country.

Last Wednesday evening a woman made oath, before Sir Robert Ladbroke, to a man's setting fire to Portsmouth dock-yard: She had been at the Admiralty-office and was directed to a magistrate, to make affidavit of the truth of her assertion. A warrant was granted for apprehending him.

A lieutenant beat up yesterday for seamen, and bills were stuck up at Change, Wapping, and other parts: And the grand place of rendezvous is appointed at St. Catherine's, Tower-hill.

Last night an alarm was spread among the shipping, below Bridge, that express warrants had been issued, and abundance of sailors went on shore.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 3. Last Thursday a ship arrived which landed some Arabs, who would have forced into the house of the Prussian ambassador, if he had not a guard sent to protect him from insult. The next day an officer was sent from Constantinople, to oblige the ship to depart. The foreign ambassadors are truly in a critical situation, for if they stay in the capital, their lives are in danger from the plague; to avoid which they retire to their country-houses, where they continually run the danger of being murdered by a lawless soldiery.

On the 27th of last month a fire happened, which burnt upwards of 200 houses.

CADIZ, July 10. Letters from the coast of Barbary advise, that the King of Morocco has punished with the Bastinado two of his corsairs who insulted three French ships; and has ordered the greatest respect to be paid to the French flag, on pain of severe punishment to whoever disobeys those orders.

PARIS, July 10. We have just received information by divers ships which have successively arrived from India, that the famous Hider Ali Kan, hath broken the treaty, concluded some time ago, between him and the English; that availing himself of an interval of peace which the Europeans had afforded him, that General had attacked the Marattas with all his troops, and had gained such advantages over them, that they had been constrained to sue for peace; that then resuming his former sentiments of hatred against his ancient enemies he was preparing to make war against them with his whole forces, now considerably augmented by his late conquests.

We are farther informed, that the English on the coast of Corromandel behave towards the French in a manner a little tyrannical.

WILLIAMSBURGH, (in Virginia) October 18.

ON Monday the 15th Instant, about One o'Clock in the Morning departed this Life, universally lamented throughout this Colony, his Excellency the Right Honourable NORBORNE BARON DE BOTETOURT, his Majesty's Lieutenant, Governor General, and Commander in Chief, of the Colony and Dominion of VIRGINIA, and Vice-Admiral of the same.

Truly and justly to express the many great Virtues and amiable Qualities which adorned this Noble Lord, as well in his public as private Character, would Demand the Skill of the ablest Penmen. Suffice it then to inform such Parts of the World as were Strangers to his transcendent Merits, that Virginia, in his Fall, sorely laments the Loss of the best of Governors, and the best of Men. Let his distant Relations and Friends be told, that we have all anticipated, and shall, to the latest Period, share their Griefs and deep Afflictions; and that we condole with them, with the Warmth of the most tender Affection.

An old Servant of Lord Botetourt's, who had lived between six and seven-twenty Years in his Family, died at three o'Clock of the same Morning with his Lordship.

By the Resignation of the Honourable John Blair, Esq; as President of his Majesty's Council, the Command of this Dominion devolves upon the Honourable William Nelson, Esq; who has issued a Proclamation for all Magistrates and Officers, civil and military, to continue and remain in all and singular their Powers, Authorities, and Jurisdictions, until farther Orders, and requiring them to proceed in the Execution of their several Duties.

There have been fresh Disturbances in North-Carolina, by the People who stile themselves Regulators. Colonel Fanning, of Orange-County, has had his House demolished, all his Furniture broken to Pieces, and Beds ripped open, by those regulating Gentry.

October 19. This being the Day appointed for interring the Remains of our late beloved Governor, at One o'Clock the Church, College, and Capitol Bells, began tolling; and the Company repaired to the Palace, according to Invitation, precisely at Two. At Three, the Corpse being placed on the Hearse, the Procession began to move in the following Order to the Church, both Sides of Palace-Street being lined with the City Militia, and those of York and James City Counties: viz.

The HEARSE, Proceeded by two Mutes, and three on each Side the Hearse, Outward of whom walked the Pall-Bearers, composed of six of his Majesty's Council, and the Honourable the Speaker, and Richard Bland, Esq; of the House of Burgesses. His Excellency's Servants, in deep Mourning. The Gentlemen of the Clergy, and Professors of the College. Clerk of the Church and Organist. Immediately followed the Hearse the Chief Mourners. Gentlemen of the Faculty, Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Common Council, of the City. With the Mace borne before them. Gentlemen of the Law, and Clerk of the General Court. Ushers, Students, and Scholars, of William and Mary College. All having white Hat-Bands and Gloves. And then the Company, which was very numerous, two and two.

At the Western Gate the Corpse was removed from the Hearse, and carried by eight Bearers, the Gentlemen appointed supporting the Pall, placed in the Centre of the Church, on a Carpet of black. The Altar, Pulpit, and his Excellency's Seat, were likewise hung with black. Then the Service began; and an Anthem, accompanied by the Organ, was conducted by Mr. Wools. The Reverend and Honourable the Commissary then delivered a Discourse from Psalm xiii. part of the 7th Verse, Put thy Trust in God; which, joined to the deep Affliction felt by the whole Audience for the Loss of such an excellent Man, and so good a Governor, drew Tears from many. Sermon being ended, the Corpse was again placed on the Hearse, and the Company moved in the same Order to the College, entering at the Front Gate, and so proceeding through the College to the Chapel, where the Corpse was deposited in a Vault, the Militia firing three Vollies at the Interment. The Coffin was of Lead, with a Cover of Crimson Velvet, adorned with Silver Handles, and a large Silver Plate, on which was this Inscription:

NORBORNE Baron de BOTETOURT,
Ob. xv Oct. MDCCLXX.
Ætat. LIII.

His Majesty's Council, and the Gentlemen of the General Court, have gone into deep Mourning for Lord Botetourt; and we are well informed that most of the principal Gentlemen will do the same, in such general Esteem was his Lordship held, and so universally lamented.

PHILADELPHIA, October 18.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Princeton, to his friend in Philadelphia.

"In the last week's paper you have an account of the Commencement annually held here; and although you are already acquainted with the particulars, yet I cannot help adding that the grandeur and decorum with which the whole was conducted, reflects honour on the seminary from which they graduated. That truly noble and patriotic spirit which inflames the breasts of those who are real lovers of their country, seems already implanted in theirs. I have the pleasure to inform you, their united efforts to appear in cloth manufactured in America, succeeded to their wish: May I not then say with the young gentleman, that the gayest butterfly in the whole assembly, in all its borrowed plumes, did not appear more brilliant than his class-mates, who were that day honoured with their attendance.---What too sanguine hopes can we then have of those gentlemen, and such principles so early instilled in them."

On Sunday last the Presbyterian Church, in Arch-street, was hung in black, in testimony of their regard for the late Reverend Mr. GEORGE WHITEFIELD, when two HYMNS (one of which was composed by Mr. WHITEFIELD himself, for his funeral) were sung by some young Gentlemen, and a SERMON, suitable to the occasion, was preached, by the Reverend Mr. SPROAT, from ACTS xi. 24 v. "For HE WAS A GOOD "MAN, and FULL of the HOLY GHOST, and of FAITH: "And MUCH PEOPLE was ADDED unto the LORD." We hear the Sermon will be printed.

OCTOBER 25. Captain Leech, from Lisbon, on his passage, the 15th of September, when observing, in lat. 32, 24, long. 54, 30, saw a Planet in the S. E. Quarter of the Sun, which did not go off till Saturday the 22d, he being then in lat. 27, 19, long. 36, 45: And on the 11th inst. in lat. 33, 13, long. 68, he saw two Planets very near together in the Sun, one of them much larger than the other, which he did not lose sight of till the 17th inst. being then in sight of Cape Heplopen. They were so plain that he frequently saw them with his naked eye an hour after sun-rise and an hour before it set; when they often took away the reflection of the sun, so that it appeared as dull as the moon.

On Sunday last, at St. Paul's Church, the Reverend Mr. Stringer preached a Sermon on the Death of the late Reverend Mr. GEORGE WHITEFIELD, from REVELATIONS xii, 11th ver. "And they overcame him by the Blood of the Lamb, and by the Word of their Testimony, and they loved not their Lives unto the Death." The Church was hung with Black.

Extract of a letter from Malaga, August 10, 1770.

"The Algerines are cruising now on these coasts: They have lately taken four small Spanish vessels near this place. Commodore Barcello, with only two xebeques, commanded by himself and his brother, passed in sight of this port yesterday, steering to the eastward in quest of said pirates; they know their duty well, are gallant, and their names terrible to the barbarians.

"The Danish squadron is returned from Algiers, in disgrace, to Minorca: It is said they will return to attack said place when they receive a sufficient reinforcement.

"The Russians by all accounts are in a miserable situation in the Morea, being in want of every thing: Last week a ship arrived at Gibraltar from Mahon, who brought letters from thence that mention the arrival of a Russian frigate, with an Admiral and four large transport ships full of sick and wounded sailors and soldiers from said islands, which is a plain demonstration that they have no place of strength or safety in the Morea to establish hospitals in, and lodge their people with safety. The Turks destroy all the Russians and Greeks they can come at, without distinction of either age or sex: The latter unhappy people will ever have reason to lament their joining, or even favouring the Russians."

NEW-YORK, October 22.

On Thursday morning last, we had the agreeable news of the arrival of our Governor, the Right Hon. JOHN EARL of DUNMORE, at the Narrows, in his Majesty's ship the Tweed. About three o'clock his Excellency came up in a barge, and landed at the Ferry-stairs at White-Hall: On his landing, the battery guns were fired, and all the shipping in the harbour displayed their colours: A crouded assembly of people of all ranks, attended him from the White-Hall to the Council-Chamber, in Fort-George, with repeated loud huzzas, and the utmost joy appeared in every countenance.

The next day, at the Council-Board, his commission was read, and the oaths administered. After which he went, attended by his Majesty's Council, the Corporation, the Clergy, and most of the principal gentlemen of the town, with continual huzzas, and every demonstration of joy, to the City-Hall; the windows in the streets through which he passed, being crouded with ladies: His commission was there published to the inhabitants, who testified their approbation by repeated huzzas!

A number of gentlemen had a genteel dinner at Hambden-Hall, where many Toasts were drank.

In the evening the gentlemen at Hambden-Hall, had a large bonfire erected in the Commons, where was assembled the greatest number of people ever seen on the like occasion. Most of the houses were handsomely illuminated, and a genteel ball was given by the gentlemen of the town and army, at Bolton's.

Colonel Reed came passenger in the Tweed frigate.

Extract of a letter from Boston.

"Our manufacturing scheme was yesterday reported, and met with so universal an approbation, that every word and sentiment was received without so much as a syllable's objection. It is so well calculated that it must succeed, for every man who can spare a shilling a year, may be interested in it. Scott has brought seven weavers and a wire drawer, and I hear, one or more paper makers. Mr. Hancock generously gave the manufacturers their passages free.

"We are menaced with ships of war and more troops, to be quartered upon us. What great things these terrific measures will produce time will discover; but without pretence to inspiration, I guess, Britain's commerce will sooner and most permanently feel the injury. We still hear of sending for the heads of the faction, of laying our towns in ashes, of subduing our republican spirits, and such puerile bombast; but alas! such is our carnal security, that we laugh at the rod in the hands of tyrants, who cannot determine what part of a universally discontented people they dare begin to chastise with it!

"Let them take it for granted, that while ever there continues a general opinion of ill-treatment on one hand, there will be an adequate resentment and disaffection on the other. Harsh usage can only increase and confirm a slight aversion into an abounded detestation. Men born and educated in the perfect sense of their rights and privileges, can never resign them quietly without a bargain of some kind. Nothing of this sort has ever been proposed to the poor Americans. They are to become hewers of wood and drawers of water, barely to divert their kind mother,----from a trial of her strength in crushing them to pieces: Or what is still more provoking, they and their affectionate brethren in Britain and Ireland, are required to bow the knee to a power abhorred and execrated by themselves and ancestors, as long as any trace of Saxon courage can be gleaned from the wastes of antiquity."

On Sunday the 14th instant, sermons were preached in both the Presbyterian churches in this city, on the mournful occasion of the Rev. Mr. WHITEFIELD's death, by the Rev. Dr. Rodgers, from Matthew xxv. 21, "His Lord said unto him, well "done thou good and faithful Servant, thou hast been faithful "over a few Things, I will make thee ruler over many Things; "enter thou into the Joy of thy Lord:"——Which passage of Scripture he applied with great propriety to the character and reward of that eminent servant of Christ.---The Rev. Mr. Treat also took proper notice of this melancholy event.

BOSTON, October 15.

In consequence of the appointment of a Committee of the House of Representatives, and the report of the same committee, we are informed, that the House came into a resolution on Tuesday last, that from absolute necessity only, and in order thoroughly to enquire into the state of the province and radically to redress public grievances, many of which were new and insupportable, they proceeded to business; which they had through the two preceeding sessions utterly declined, as being by no means expedient, while the General Assembly was thus constrained to hold the Sessions out of the Town-house in Boston. Previous to this determination, which involved in it the grand question, whether to continue the stand they had made or not, it was moved and ordered, that the matter be decided by Yeas and Nays; and the members being accordingly called upon seriatim to give their voices, it was carried by 59 to 29.

This very important Question being thus decided, the House was moved for a Committee to state the reasons which had induced them to come into the resolution, in like manner as they had done before, when they resolved it to be not expedient to proceed to public business; and a committee was accordingly appointed: These reasons will probably be published; and when that is done, the people without doors, by comparing the reasons which so strongly operated the two last sessions, with those which have now had so different an effect, will have an opportunity, as they will undoubtedly have a right, of forming their own judgment of the matter.

Extract of a letter from London, dated July 27, 1770.

"You may rely on it as a matter of fact, that it is voted in council, to send several regiments into Boston, to support such people there in importing and vending their goods, as will in opposition to the sense of the province, pursue such a business; and that a number of ships are also ordered to invest the town."

----If the foregoing be true, it shows how important the Non-importation agreement has been, even in the opinion of administration; how great a pity it is therefore, that the merchants did not continue it at least one season longer. It remains then that the Landholders take the matter under their consideration, and withhold from buying a single article---We can live without the baubles of Britain---If there are no purchasers there cannot long be importers; we shall save our money, and save our country.
